

Morning: 4 hours Fort Canning Park Tour (History + Spice garden+ Internet celebrity photo spots)

Fort Canning Hill, formerly Government Hill, Singapore Hill and Bukit Larangan (Forbidden Hill in Malay), is a small hill about 48 metres (157 ft) high in the southeast portion of the island city-state of Singapore, within the Central Area that forms Singapore's central business district. Although small in physical size, it has a long history intertwined with that of the city-state due to its location as the highest elevation within walking distance to the city's civic district within the Downtown Core. It is also a popular venue for music shows and concerts.

Spice Garden: You might have tasted nutmeg and clove in various cuisines, but have you ever seen how their trees look like? This garden in the garden is the first experimental botanical garden built in Singapore in 1822, imitating Raffles. The experimental botanical garden originally had an area of 19 hectares, and the current spice garden is a microcosm of it. Visit the spice garden, learn about history, and learn about cardamom, pandan leaves, laksa leaves, etc., all of which are spices used to make local food in Singapore.

Sang Nila Utama Garden: Imitate the traditional Javanese style and reproduce the 14th century royal garden scene. You will enter a journey back in time. The king used to order jackfruit, rambutan, magnolia and gardenia to be cultivated in this royal garden.

In 1819, after Stamford Raffles landed at the mouth of the Singapore River, he saw this hill overlooking the mouth of the Singapore River and built the Governor's Mansion on the top of the hill. In 1823, he also chose to build a home here. The Maritime Corner that witnessed Singapore's transformation from an entrepot trade port to an international shipping center.

In addition to being a historic site that has been carrying different historical missions for hundreds of years, the "patio"-Dragon Cavern Rotating Stairway, hidden in the corner of Fort Canning Park, is also a veritable hidden celebrity filming location. Looking up from the bottom of the well, dense green plants should cover the entire sky, and the side of the well is covered with green wall vines, like a lost wonderland.

Proceed to YWCA fort canning Lodge to enjoy the Local special lunch.
